

Profession has no Gender

Professionals from Greece and abroad, virtually connect with groups of students throughout the country, aiming at inspiring the new generation to pursue the academic and professional paths of their choice, without any kind of bias or limitations.

Mentors from a wide range of professional sectors, such as women mechanics, scientists and CEOs as well as men who work as nurses, social services professionals, kindergarden teachers, etc., interact with students via live sessions and asynchronous video-answers, urging them to open the spectrum of their options, believe in their skills and set their career decisions free of stereotypes related to profession and sex.

The goal of "Profession has no Gender" is to help students see how the future of work is creating a new professional reality and how gender stereotypes should not affect the profession they choose.

The project is a strategic collaboration initiative of Piraeus Bank.