

Digital & Soft skills for the 21st century

The project “Digital and Soft Skills for the 21st century reaches even more schools throughout Greece during the 3rd consecutive year of the collaboration between PwC Greece and Tipping Point.

Up to this day, more than 60 executives of the company, coming from multiple sectors: IT, HR, Auditing and Consulting, have undertaken, voluntarily, the mentor’s role, sharing their experience with the new generation and contributing with their input to their getting informed about today’s needs.

During the 2 previous years of its implementation, the project reached 24 schools in Greece, while this year, students from 12 more schools will have the opportunity to:

- Learn about the digital and soft skills that will help them thrive in their profession
- Get a deeper understanding of their value, especially in this ever-changing environment
- Discover ways to begin developing these skills from a young age
- Start thinking in an innovative and modern way, on which they will base their personal and professional growth.

The project is implemented with the support of PwC Greece.
