

Natural Gas: A contemporary sector

With the project “Natural Gas: A contemporary sector”, students discover the sector, as well as all the new opportunities and professional prospects it has created.

With employees of DEDA undertaking the role of mentors, students of general and vocational high schools in Northern Greece get informed about the career outlets this sector has offered to modern-day societies, by getting to know a multitude of professions, in order to be inspired by the personal careers and experiences of the mentors.

Apart from the career-related conversations, the students, with the assistance of the mentors, learn about the current developments taking place in the Natural Gas sector, the constant need for more modern equipment and procedures, the technology behind the gas distribution, etc.

The project is implemented with the support of DEDA.
